Every gentleman fended alike with his rapler and with his wit—every lady played at piquet and double entendre. Every scribble was an athlete in punning—every courtier an expert in theatre rang with railery, and even the street had its hits. But it was in the coffee house, in the long its hits. But it was in the coffee house, in the long rights, by the big, rude, blazing chimney, over the foaming porter, the generous murmaring wine, that the license, romance, strength, glory, rasality and fascination of this age of wits burst forth in its glittening produgality. In the spirit of the time it was a little absurd to be entirely modes, marvel lous to be silent, lunatic to be sincere, stupid to be honest, but necessary for society and salvacion to be a wit.

The old dramatists have touched the times with the "sweetest rescallest" infection. They have cleat them with burnished temptations and innoculated them with a bewlldering multitude of humors. The prejudices of the age are facetle, and the marrowy heart of the day bubbles out with rich jeu d'esprits. A rakish bon housie, a sanny epigramunatic malice manulad the old English mind of the Restoration. No caste escaped it. The Bar interlaced the statutes with freaks of speach, and the Bench forgot its wig to smile upon the whim. The Pulpit still farther, involuntarily perplexed theology by its jungles of wit, and many a soul remembered the pan who had forgotten the prayer. The age by its jungles of wit, and many a soul remembered the pan who had forgotten the prayer. The age was possessed of a devil, enuning of fence and sparking with drollery. It was full of Coagerev rockets and Rabelais requery, full of the music and wince of literature, streaming with perfumes and burning with voluptuousness. Its blandishments were dazzling and increasant. The whole era was a most "volatile and fertile sinner," and the "Inconstant," is one of its sweetest-sinning legacies.—It less the true quality of the racy vintage of the Seventeenth Century. There is an exquisite completeness in the rounding of the text in the "Inconstant." The brisk explosion of the tart seatences excite vivid delight. Mirabel is full of smiling rudeness and audactous compliment. When in the mood, he toys with the Lady Orians as with a pet paroquette. And in the snapping of his fingers, holds her as lightly as if he had pitched pence for her soul and wen it. The sincerity of woman is his standing jest, the sacredness of marriage the acme of his pleasantries. From Grams he often gets thrust for thrust.

There is the crispy smack of a handsome woman.

There is the crispy smack of a handsome woman in her tongue. Her part of the dialogue is a dainty dish—a vagout of Lydian innuendos. She scourges the brilliant profligate with a felicitous wit, and in the end teaches his mercurial blood to course honestly. In a word, the Inconstant is the lusticat, aircst, richest-scaled carnal councily we have seen for years. And we trust Mr. McVicker will again facer, may give a personal form of it. Mr. Perey. contily address, and peculiar inscussiance, would perform Young Mirabel, oredibly. Let us have an other of the old English comedies.

This is, par excellence, the fair of the season, and is conducted with such taste and skill as to render it superior to anything of the kind that has been heretofore attempted in our city. The originality of plan, the simplicity and regularity of the arangements, the costly tables and golden prizes—all unite in elevating it above all former undertakings of the kind and sion are varied and interesting. Vocal and instru-mental music by masters in the art will afford the results make by masters in the art will afford the visitor an opportunity to spend the evening pleas-antly while enjoying the sweet odor emitting from the rich fruits and abundant sweetmeap that crowd the tables, or feasting his eyes upon the artless beauties that surround him. All who visit it once will do so again; and we do not hesitate to say that there is no place of amusement in the city, at the present time, where

The proceeds of the Fair will be applied towards the erection of one of the finest church edifices in the North-west. Our citizens are already aware of the commencement of this undertaking ; and by the numerous expressions of their approbation already exhibited towards it, we are fully convinced has cess must attend it. This is a worthy object of public patronage, as it will not only contribute largely to the advancement of religion and the pur-ification of public morality, but will prove an orna-ment to our city, and a triumph in architectural art.

Criticago Bible Society.—Metropolitan Hall was crowded Sunday evening on the occasion of the Seventeenth Anniversary of the Chicago Bible Society. The exercises were unusually interseting, being participated in by a number of the ablest clergymen of the city by abort addresses, and the Chicago Musical Union volunteering their aid on the occasion. Rev. Mr. Cracraft read an appropriate portion of Scriptures, and Rev. Dr. Curlis made the opening prayer.

The annual report of the Executive Committee was read by the Chairman, R. B. Curter, which presented the affairs of the Society in a very favorable light, and made an axiabit of a praiseworthy amount of work done by the Society for the past, under the liberal naturators of the various Addresses were then made by Rev's S. C. Rar-lett, N. H. Schenck, Jas. Baume, and A. L. Brooks. Mr. Bartlett favored a thorough canvassing of this city for the purpose of placing the Bible in the hands of every family in its limits. He gave an extended account of the workings of the Bible Society in New Hampshire, and stated that nearly every family in that State was supplied with the Seriptures. Rev. Mr. Baume's address was one of much power, denoughny in severe but merited much power, denouncing in severe but merited terms the Bomish church of the country, and the slaveholders in the South for their efforts to prevent book were opposed to the workings of both Romanism and Shavery.

They are red-dogs, and we want to see their "hides on the fence" with al the Missouri Compromise, he and his add denied that Congress rightfully had any the least possible delay. With these instituhat the power was vested in the hands of the people. The Republicans, falling back upon the action of Congress, upon the opinions of the Pathers, and the former policy of the De-mocracy, contended that the Territorial Soveour banking system, out of the way, we do not see, with the law as it is, and with Bank Comnissioners and an Auditor who know their will prevent our currency from so rising in public estimation that it will command the roise that sovereignty as it pleased, or that night delegate it to a Territorial Legisla-e or to a Constitutional Convention. Upon a difference the battle was fought, and the onfidence which the notes of the stock secured banks of the State of New York new enjoy. The people swallowed the lie, and Mr. Buchanan was elected; but as soon as that fact was known, the Supreme rt, a purely partizan body, entered the of politics, and by its Deed Scott decision upset the doctrines which the pre-slavery leaders had preached to the people, declaring, as everybody behind the scenes knew that it would declare, that the Missouri Compromise was unconstitutional, that slaves were property under the Constitution of the United States, that or twenty millions dollars that you need. You can obtain it in New York. It is lying there unneed in the vanits. The credit of the nation will bring it out. Go and advertise for it and you will get it. If you can get it for one per cent, do not give six per cent, to save the country and bless the poor people in distress. If it requires two per cent, give two, and so on up to six per cent. Make the best bargain you can, and agree to pay at a certain date, and then take that money and put it into circulation throughout the country. That is Democracy—genuine Democracy, inean, which is Republicanism now—and I will voir for it. I object again, because I do not perceive, at present, the necessity for this loan. Why, even the friends of the measure say that they do not know that they will be obliged to issue the amount. It is a kind of contingency that they are contemplating. Gentlemen have said on this floor, and I want the House to take notice of it, that they did not know that there ahould be a single dollar of this loan needed. Well, then, how can we perceive the necessity of it, if its friends cannot? Why do they not come forward and make a frank statement here, and tell us why they want the money, and for what they want, the money, and just how much they want, a that we can vote understandingly on the saeject?

But suppose the money is actually necessary, which nerhaps we must admit, is this the only on the suppose the money is actually necessary, which perhaps we must admit, is this the only mode of raising it? Go sell half of the custom-houses of the land, where the income does not meet the expenses. Go to Pensacola, and all along the coast, and do it. Go to the interior, where officers were accounted to receive rell. along the coast, and do it. Go to the interior, where officers were appointed to receive rall-road iron, away out on your inland rivers and lakes, so as to save the importers from paying the duty for a few m nuts, till the iron was actually delivered to them. These officials warm over the country. The railroads are now built, and the necessity for these offices has ceased; but the officers are, there, and the salaries are there. Why not retretch? Mr. Cobb's report struck me as if it was enough to excite a smile upon a gravestone almost. Saya he, "the Government ought to practice retrenchment. The Government ought to economize." Yes, I think so too.

The Government ought to economize." Yes, I think so too.

Now, supposing the Government do retrench, de economize; suppose we call in nihe tenths or ninety nine hundredths of our foreign diplomatic corps. Are they doing anything now! Have they any business to negotiate! As the gentleman who represents this Government at Madrid is to be removed, that place, for one, can be left vacant. We will save something there. The probability is that our Minister and Envoy Extraordinary there, (and he was certainly a very extraordinary cavey,) will be recalled, for I suppose there is nothing to be done there, inasmuch as the depleted state of the Treasury will prevent the purchase of Cuba for the present. I do not know what our Minister at St. Petersburg has to do either. Rather than borrow, I think an individual ought to retrench. Rather than borrow, I think an individual ought to retrench. Rather than borrow, I think a Government ought to retrench. I do not know of any foreign nation where we require a minister now, but one, and that is Great Britain. Let us have consuls to look after the commercial interests of the country, and after the interests of our clizens who may be abroad; and let us cut off all these ministers plotipoten tiary. We will save something in that way. I hope that my friend from Virginis [Mr. Letcher] is as re-fical on retrenchment at I am.

I say, then force, I do not see the necessity of this loan. I am not convinced yet that the amount might not be saved by retrenchment. I understood the report of the Secretary of the Treasury to state that he had, on the last of July, $17,710,000, and that the collections for the quarter ending September 30, were over twenty millions; making in all $38,800,000. Now, if he collect $12,00,000 for the current watche which is nike estimation he will be as head

Now, if he collect $12,600,000 for the current quarter, which in his estimate, he will have had $50,000,000 to cover expenses of six months. Is not that enough? The income of the pres-ent fiscal year for six months, according to should like to know that. That is a new way of retrenchment and economy.

Another objection that I urguis to the amount proposed to be raised. I would like to call the attention of the House to this fact, that I have not heard any gentleman urge anything that squinted towards the necessity of this $20,000,000. They do not know that a dollar will be wanted. And yet they want to give the Scoretary of the Treasury the privilege of drawing for $20,000,000, more than half enough to support the government, economically administrated during the entire facal year. I object for $20,000,000, more than half enough to support the government, economically administered, during the entire fiscal year. I object, therefore, to the amount. I want to propose an amendment to insert "six," in lieu of "twenty," in this first section. If I understood the Scoretary aright, he proposes to issue $6,000,000 right off, on these plates that are already waiting to have the stamp, and then he proposes to borrow the rest if he can. I move to amend the first section of the bill, by striking out the word "twenty," and inserting in lieu thereof the word "six."

The Chairman. That amendment will take precedence of the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts, [Mr. Banka]

Mr. Lovejoy. I object to the bill in the fifth place, Mr. Chairman, because there is no mode provided to repay this loan. It seems to be matter of common economy, that when a man runs in debt he shall have some idea of how he is to pay it, if he means to be honest. There is no provision here, and no allusion to any mode of paying this indebtedness. How is it going to be done? The Secretary of the Treamry says that this thing is temporary; that this revulsion will pass away, and money will flow into the treasury, so that he can repay the debt. He wants some seventy or eighty millions to carry on the Government. Add to that this $20,000,000, and you have $100,000,000. Once any sane man believe that $50,000,000. Will come into the treasury during the year? And how is the government to be carried on at the expense of $80,000,000, and then his $20,000,000 additional to be paid? I should like to know that. There, is no way of ready to relieve the Government, and to resto to its former prosperity the whole country and myself in particular, still I do not belie that any system of partial relief—any measured of empiricism, will do it. We shall go to to bottom, and we may as well sink and sink under the country to save ourselves before we touch the rossir, what is paper currency—irredeemal paper currency? It is a falsehood. When bank bill goes abroad in the country and, sa "I am twenty dollars, or I am fifty dollars represent so much specie," it is a falsehood on its face. It does not represent what it puports to represent. It often represents nothed had when we put forth paper currency. Treasury notes to the world, purporting represents so much specie in the Treasury, other photes of deposit, when the specie is there, it is deceptive. It is like the Credit bilier of France. It represents not specie, the credit of the country. And, if the present administration follows in the footsteps of do not think the credit of the country will be worth much. Sir, all these attempts to relieve these commercial disasters, or to prevent them, by new issues of irredeemable paper, are like the policy of the man in Scripture, who built his house upon the sand; and when the rains descended and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, it fell. I tell you that all the cobweb attempts to keep off the storm will be unavailing. Your bark may sit calm and beautiful upon the lake while its waters remain unruffled, but when the storm comes it will be capsized and will sink. And so, when you undertake to build up national prosperity, by means of a paper currency which does not represent dellar for dollar, and is not convertible into specie, it will not stand. But, sir, when you build it upon hard money, upon a metallic currency, you have built your house upon a rook, and it will stand the test of all the, storms that may beat upon it. Sir, I repeat storms that may beat upon it. Sir, I repeat that this system of putting in circulation mere promises to pay instead of the money itself, is always found wanting when we need the cash.

But I go further. I cannot vote for this bill because I do not know what is to be done with because I do not know what is to be done with the money. I do not know where it is to go, or for what it is to be paid out. I do not know what you are going to do with it, Mr. Secretary Cobb. Are you going to pay your four regisments which you propose to raise as a matter of retrenchment? Are you going to pay for your ten war steamers which you propose to have built as a measure of economy?

Mr. J. Giancy Jones—I thought I had sufficiently explained it. The requisition is for the authority to use $20,000,000, if necessary, to pay the debts of this government, in accordance with existing law. Not a dollar will be paid out by the Secretary, except in accordance paid out by the Secretary, except in accordance with the appropriation bills of the last Con gress. Mr. Lovejoy—I do not suppose he will. I was asking, Mr. Chairman, why this money was needed, and whether it is to be employed in sustaining those four regiments which are p posed by the President's message, or, more p perly, in the report of the Secretary of the Tr sury? Is there not a recommendation that war steamers be built; and that, too, at a same time that they are asking authority to ue $20,000,000 of Treasury notes. Now, want to know if these $20,000,000 are goin a sustain those face. to sustain those four regiments? I should lik to know whether it is necessary to have thes the Lecompton Constitution, without sub-sion to the people, and whether we are to them with this money? This is what I desir know. I have no doubt they want money; I should like to know how much of it is go to be used, as has been the case heretofor to extraining assuration in Kansus. How in sustaining usurpation in Kansus. How much is to be used to force, at the point of the bayonet, upon the people of Kansas a government for which every person in the United States knows they never voted and never will, and that, too, right in the face of the declaration that, too and that, too, right in the face of the declaration that "government derives all its just powers from the consent of the governed."

Let my right arm wither first, and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, before I will wote a cent to uphold, the infamy the pass and present Administrations have attempted, and are now attempting, to impose upon an unwilling people. I have the right to inquire, and I want to know, whether that policy is still to be pursued; and whether the United States troops are to be employed to force upon a people institutions they do not want? I know tyrants always want money. Philip II. wanted oney. It was the urgency of his reign to ant money. He wanted to send the troops of pain, under the Duke of Alva, to the Netherping the Devil around the stump? Why no come out frankly, like men, and say they wan to borrow money for the purposes of the Government, and not ask for authority to use via: LEHIGH, LACKAWANA, G. RIDGE, AND SHINOKIN. OF THE SHILL, BRIE CHIPPEWA, AND NEWCASTLE that the President cannot want money for that purpose.

Mr. Lovejoy—I knew that the party in power can play sach "fantastic tricks" as make heaven birsh, and that other place smile with joy. [Laughter.] I say they want money always; and test they are always borrowing; and I say I know no parallel to the course of this Administration; I know nothing so much like it as the reign of Philip III.

I object, finally, to this bill, because it is unconstitutional. Now, it is said to be out of taste, and to be unparl unentary, to say anything about conscience here. I do not know but it is unparliamentary to say anything about the constitution; but I hope not, because we have sworn to support the constitution. I want the Committee of Ways and Means, or any other friend of this bill, to point me to that clause of the constitution which authorizes the issue of Treasury notes. Sir James Outram's force has been terribly reduced. You will remember that about September 25, he and General Havelock forced their way into the Residency and relieved the garrison. This feat was accomplished by pressing on through gardens, small bazaars, knots of houses and other inclosed places. The enemy fought as Asiatics always do fight, behind stone walls. The bullets literally rained upon the advancing force, and that single movement cost 460 men. Sixteen officers of the 90th were killed or placed hors du combat, and almost all the superior officers of the 5th Fusileers.

There had been some hard fighting before the relieving force reached the Inclosures, and the total number of soldiers killed or disabled cannot be fixed at less than 700. The force therefore, even after its junction with the garrison already in the Residency, cannot be more than 1,400 strong, and this small party must be embarrassed by the care of sick and wonded, women and children, to a number in excess of its own. You have endeavored, I percieve, to account for these atrocities. The cause is not far to seek. The Sepoys are Asiatics, and there is not an Asiatic, who having the power, would not do likewise. The educated, smooth, silken Bengalee, who talks English and quotes Milton, is exactly as cruel as the sepoy, and just as much a gentleman. The Hosdoc Patriot, for instance, a journal edited by the ablest educated native in Bengal, afraid to express its sympathy with these atrocities, coolly denies them all. En passent, I may remark the extraordinary effect produced on the native mind by the appearance of the Highlanders. The Sepoys on this side of Indis have never seen them. At first they took them for women, sent out to avenge the massacre of the Isalies at Cawuppre. The battle of Onao disabused them of that idea, and the Highlanders were pronounced "petticoateddevila." Still they were a puzzle. The Sepoys could understand the existence of devils, but could not comprehend why they should be barefigged. At last the truth came out. The devils were barelegged in order more conveniently to break Sepoys across their knees! A Sepoy of the 73d, who happened to be in Calcutta on their arrival, reported on his return to his regiment that the English were sending out monsters, with legs like elephants, faces covered with hair like wild beasts, and blood-red eyes. WIFE AND TWO CHILDREN POUND WITH THEIR THROATS CUT-THE HUSBAND AND PATRER SUP-M AND PRAYER BOOKS, The most or the Murderer.

(From the Springfield Republican.)

The most dreadful murder on record in this section of country, was discovered at Westfield on Wednesday morning. It is no less than the slanghtering, in cold blood, of a wife and two children, by the husband and father, who has fled. What is most remarkable, too, about the tragedy, is that it was committed on Tuesday morning. Dec. 15th, more than a week ago,—in a house occupted, also, by another family, and directly in the center of the village,—and yet only became known on Wednesday morning, eight days after the act was perpetrated.

Albert Stoubs, the perpetrator of this dreadful crime, is a native of Switzerland, a cigar maker by trade, an intelligent, sober and professedly religious man, a member of the Baptist church, and apparently fond of his wife and children, whom he has now so brutally butchered. He was about 35 years old, has lived in Westfield many years, was well known and respected, and had constant work and good wages in Kneil's cigar factory. He married his wife some six years ago in Suffield, Ct. The children by the union were two, one about five, and the other two years of age.

This family, apparently happy and united and prosperous, occupied one half of a double house, within six rods of the village green. On Tuesday morning week, (Dec. 16.) Stoubs was seen to leave home, and lass not bean heard from since. Neither his wife nor children had been seen by any of the neighbors since before that hour; and yet, as the family were frequently absent for several days together, the fact seems to have excited no especial attention. On Wednesday morning, (23d,) however, persons became curious if not alarmed at the continued silence in the adjoining apartment; and procuring a ladder and lantern, gained access Beautiful Juveniles &c. In the bed-room, adjoining, lay the two children, the eldest in the crib, the youngest on the bed, with their throats most brutally cut. The head of the youngest was nearly cut off, and the throat of the elder had been so thoroughly gashed as to bear two distinct cuts upon the spinal column. In the room below, the table was spread for breakfast, and the coffee was in the coffee pot, untouched, leaving no doubt that it was just at the breakfast hour that the murders were committed. committed.

Stoubs has been heard to express a desire to go to New York, hindered only by not knowing what to do with his family; and this is the only suggestion of a motive for the crime. It is thought he may have now gone to that city—and there he could hardly escape detection and arrest; but with offst down.

A dispatch from Malta to the Foreign office, dated Dec. 9, mays:

"Capt. Lore, in charge of dispatches from Lord Canning, states that Lord Canning received the foilowing dispatch from Sir Colin Campbell, dated the 9th of November, Cawupore:

"All right at Lucknow." Sir Colin Campbell of November, and is stated to have 7,000 men with him, to march on Lucknow.

"Greathed's column, after the battle of Agra, was pushing on with all haste towards Cawnpore, where on the 18th, Brigadier Grant, of the 9th Lancers, joined and took command. On the 23d, they crossed at Kamoni, where the enemy was cut up by the cavalry, and five guns captured. The force, now about 3,500 strong, reached Cawnpore on the 25th; and being reinforced to 5,000 crossed the Ganges on the 30th. They reached Alumbagh without obstruction on the 3d, and there wait till the Commander-in-Chief joins them.

Lucknow, said to be surrounded by 50,000 insurgents, had not been relieved at the date of the latest advices, but still held out, and our force at Alumbagh, only three miles from Lucknow, though in easy communication with Cawnpore, had not received a line from Lucknow for more than a month.

Sir C. Campbell, who left Calcutta on the 27th October, reached Cawnpore on the 3d of November, where he remained till the 9th, waiting, it is presumed, reinforcements, which must bring up the force at Alumbagh, when he joins, to close on 10,000 men. On the 1st of November, an action was fought near the village of Kudoni, between the Dinapore mutineers and a detachment of 800 men, consisting of part of the Naves Brigade and a detachment of the latest of the Naves Brigade and a detachment of the latest of the latest of the latest of many strongers and a detachment of 800 men, consisting of part of the Naves Brigade and a detachment of the latest and a detachment of 800 arrest; but with cight days' time for flight, if he has extended it farther—to Europe, or the remote parts of the country—he will probably succeed in escaping earthly justice altogether.

> The house was-located on School street, and occupied in the other part by Mr Murdock and his family, while a student in the Normal school occupied a room directly over that in which Mrs. Stoub was murdered. He has come and gone, and slopt, for a week, within a few feet of all this horror and death, and yet in undisturbed ignorance. He was very much affected on Wednesday morning, on the discovery of the fact, and insisted on changing his quarters immed ately. GREAT ASSIGNEE'S SALE on Wednesday morning, on the discovery of the fact, and insisted on changing his quarters immed ately.

There is evidence on every hand of Steube' kindness to his family. He earned $18 a week at his trade, provided well for his household, and was noticed frequently to hire a horse and carriage, and drive them out for pleasure. Stoubs was attacked with the infections of Millerism in 1863 or '54, and for a long time yielded to its sway. He is said to have preached on two or three occasions, and peddled a Millerite chart about the country; probably one got up in this city, which undertook to prove by figures or quotations from Scripture the truth of the doctrines of the Second Adventists. In all other respects than his fanaticism on this point, he was generally considered, sane. In this aspect he resembles, somewhat, the murderer Jones; but in all other aspects, he was a more respectable man, and was generally liked by his acquaintances.

The village of Westfield was of course thrown into a great excitement by the discovery of the crime, at least a hundred persons had gathered about the house, and the excitement throughout the entire day was intense. During the progress of the inquest, the house was besieged by scores of women, anxious to get a glimpse of the horribly mutilated corpses. These terrible excasions bring into the clearest light the morbid enriosity which distinguishes the female mind.

The Springfield Republican of Saturday has the following additional: On the morning of the murder, Stoubs was On the morning of the murder, Stoubs was seen running toward Springfield, about half an bour after sunrise. It is known to the Postmaster of Westfield that Stoubs had received a letter from Switzerland, on the Saturday previous to the murder, and it is thought that the letter contained money from his friends to convey him to Europe. He had been heard to complain of the hard times and wish be was at home. The surmises are that he became tired of living in America, but lacked the means to get home with; that he wrote home of the hard times, and got money enough to take himself to Europe, but not enough to convey his family; that he murdered his wife and children, of whom there seems no doubt he was extremely by; that he mardered his wife and children, of whom there seems no doubt he was extremely foud, rather than to leave them penniless, and botook himself to Boston. A steamer sailed from that port on the 16th, (the day after the murder,) and it is thought he secretly procured a suit of clothing on Monday, walked to Springfield Tuesday morning, took the cars to Boston, and sailed on Wednesday.
